GOBI TOUR

Omnogobi (South Gobi) □ is the largest but least populated aimag of Mongolia populated by the Khalkh. The aimag is also home to one-quarter of Mongolia□s domesticated camels. Omnogobi supports thousands of black-tailed gazelle, which you may see darting across the open plains. The capital of this aimag Dalanzadgad has reasonable facilities and regular transport. Gurvansaikhan Nuruu range in the centre provides the main topographic relief in the middle of Gobi with highest altitude of 2825 m.

Hongoryn sand dunes □ are the largest and most spectacular sand dunes of Mongolian Gobi. Also known as Duur Mankhan (singing dunes). They are up to 800 m high, 12 km wide and about 100 km long. The largest dunes are in the north-western corner of the range. The dunes are about 180 km from Dalanzadgad.

Yolyn Am □ meaning □vulture□s mouth□ in English, it is a valley of Gurvansaikhan Nuruu mountain range in the middle of Gobi and has a thick ice. Yolyn Am is located 62km north-west from Dalanzadgad. Its thick ice remains frozen all year-round. It is sometimes rather common to spot animals like eagle, vulture, ibex and argali sheeps.

Bayanzag □ Renamed as □ Flaming cliffs □ by Roy Chapman, a palenthiologist from America, it is located in Bulgan province. Bayanzag was the very first place where Chapman found dinosaur eggs and bones, some of which are exhibited in the museum of Natural History in Ulaanbaatar.

BAYAN-ULGII VISIT KAZAKH

Bayan-Ulgii

By plane

Bayan-Ulgii aimag (province) is located in the very West region of our country. It is bordered with Russia and China. 97% of the population is kazakh whereas the rest 3% are Mongolian minority groups, such as tuva, uriankhai and zakhchin. The aimag is well known for its tall mountains, various rivers, and small and big lakes. Many of the places are protected by the government and are counted as outstanding. It is rich for its wild animals and birds, which are usually not seen outside the aimag.

Kazakh life style and habits are differed from Mongolian due to different reasons. Most of the population is Muslim. By traveling to Bayan-Ulgii you will not only experience a wonderful sightseeing, but you will visit a Kazakh family as well. Kazakh people are very welcoming. Whichever family you visit, they will offer you with home made bread, boortsog (traditional fried good normally used for breakfast), sweets and in summer time they will offer you various traditional types of dairy products. Tea with milk is considered as a starter. Typically, they live in small houses, which are built using black wood, mud. However, during the summer they live in their kazakh gers (nomadic refuge). Since Kazakh ger is taller and bigger comparing to Mongolian gers, it is hard for them to heat it up during the harsh Mongolian weather. Due to this reason they do not live in gers during the winter. The kazakh gers are decorated with their beautifully hand made wall carpet and felt carpets and mattresses. Those are their one of the most important things. Their wall carpet requires a lot of work and time to be made. Some require a whole year to finish.

Despite these, you will be able to visit a kazakh host family and get a photograph with an eagle on your hand. Bayan-Ulgii is famous for its rock pictures, ancient monument with a picture of deer, and ancient grave monuments with human head figure. They are mostly 4-6000 years old. You will also have the chance to climb Tavan Bogd (4355m), which is one of the highest peaks of Mongolia.

TYPES OF TRIPS

- Horse riding
- Camel riding
- Walking
- Fishing
- Hunting using an eagle (Oct.15 □ Feb.15)
- Rivers and lakes
- Mountain

Prior and subsequent to your arrival in Mongolia, you are welcome to create your own trip itinerary and have the chance to visit a family with an eagle and monuments.

WINTER TOURS

Mongolian Lunar new year with Nomad family

Tsagaan sar

For Monglians, the first holiday to celebrate the new year is Tsagaan sar. The new year festival according to the lunar calendar is called Tsagaan, sar meaning "White Moon". This is a big family celebration lasting three days with various ceremonies. Tsagaan sar is celebrated on the first day of a spring month when winter ends and spring comes. Tsagaan sar falls in January or February on the Gregorian calendar depending on the phases of the moon, unless the leap year has been calculated differently. Celebration on the lunar new year's eve is called 'bituun' and this evening every family prepares a big meal and a lot of fresh food to have a feast. A big wrestling match is broadcast live throughout the country this evening. People ride their best horses during this holiday and prepare their new clothes in advance and wear the most elegant ones. Their homes are cleaned up thoroughly on the eve. In the morning of a new year a housewife offers the first cup of tea to gods in all directions. After the sun rises people start to greet with each other. When greeting they stretch their arms and the young support the elbow of the old. The senior or elder people wish a long and happy life to the young. While exchanging snuffbottles in greeting, people usually talk about how they passed the winter. During the days of the Lunar calendar Year Holiday there are various ceremonies: visits to relatives, exchanges of gifts and lots of eating. A guest is welcomed warmly and is served with tea and food. In addition to the offerings of food, hosts give a present to visitors and sweets to children. Every year the president gives a speech on the TV and offers greetings on the occasion of Tsagaan sar. Mongolians signify the first day of a new year very much, therefore people exercise religious practices called 'khiimorio sergeekh' to be inspired and lucky. In tsagaan sar people perform an "Ovoo" ceremony to worship their god and nature.
